

Practice policy

Support Genie health care worker must practice honesty and ethically and should not engage in unlawful behaviours as it may affect their practice and /or damage the reputation of the business.

- a. Respect the worker-person professional relationship by not taking possessions and/or property that belong to the person and/or their family
- b. Comply with relevant poisons legislation, authorisation, local policy and own scope of practice, including to safely use, administer, obtain, possess, prescribe, sell, supply and store medications and other therapeutic products
- c. Not participate in unlawful behaviour and understand that unlawful behaviours may be viewed as unprofessional conduct or professional misconduct and have implications for their registration and understand that making frivolous or vexatious complaints may be viewed as unprofessional conduct or professional misconduct and have implications for their registration and employment.

Caring for those who are vulnerable brings legislative responsibilities for Support Genie health care worker. Including the need to abide by relevant mandatory reporting requirement as they apply across individual states and territories.

- a. Abide by the relevant mandatory reporting legislation that is imposed to protect groups that are particularly at risk, including reporting obligations about the aged, child abuse and neglect and remaining alert to the newborn and infants who may be at risk, and
- b. Remain alert to other group who may be vulnerable and at risk of physical harm and sexual exploitation and act on welfare concerns where appropriate.

